THE PROJECT

We are happy to announce our project NEBULA - New European Bauhaus in Urban and rural areas. The starting point of our project is based on the ideas promoted by the New European Bauhaus (NEB) that aims to redesign Europe, led by 3 concepts that will reshape and give new life to the environment we live in: accessibility, inclusion and sustainability.

This movement has to be seen as a current of interdisciplinary subjects, connected by creativity, that will develop a new conception of meeting space, where different practices of sustainability and social inclusion are displayed. We think that these solutions can be reached tapping into young people's creativity provided that they own the right set of skills and with the right sources of inspiration.

For this reason, the role that this project is determined to play is to stimulate and raise awareness about the initiative of the NEB, researching environmental/urban/rural regeneration case studies and analysing the business models behind already developed and successful ideas, providing a new insight into emerging youth entrepreneurial activities and their economic and social potential, showing the latent power for communities enhancement and exploitation. This will show young people a future possibility of personal and professional investment, along with the key business practices for their effective management.

What makes NEBULA innovative is its main theme and objective of fostering, urban and rural restoration in a NEB perspective, the involvement modalities of young people (going from theoretical learning to hands-on activities) and the nonformal approach of resources like the knowledge-sharing platform, together with the strong stress on networking as learning and problem-solving tool.

NEBULA, exactly like the NEB initiative, wants to develop a creative, interdisciplinary initiative that takes the European Green Deal and makes it tangible for all the citizens and youth, becoming a tool to build a more sustainable, accessible, inclusive and beautiful Europe.

KICK - OFF MEETINGS

On the 5th and 24th of May, 29th June the kick-off meetings of our project took part virtually. The aim of the meetings were to form the "Big Project Picture" and to define all tasks, timelines, budget issues for carrying out a successful project.

We started research case studies, success stories and NEB award winners and good practices to be collected by all the partners.
